Bare plan on term extension, GMA urged

By GIC Cabacungan Jr.

WILL SHE OR WON'T SHE?

Senator yesterday urged President Macapagal-Arroyo to declare publicly even and fair all if she planned to remain in office beyond the statutory expiration of her term in 2010 amid heightened debate on amending the Constitution to subvert the federal system.

Ms. Arroyo has said she will stay aside when her current term under the 1987 Constitution expires, but critics point out she has kept silent on what she will do if the Clause is amended and the federal presidential system is adopted.

"I think it's better for President Arroyo to say whether she wants to extend her term or not because the people do not want to know if she has a plan to stay. People will doubt you more if you don't tell them what you have in mind," Sen. Richard Gordon said.

Gordon said doubt still is that he talked with former President Fidel V. Ramos when he was

Rebs attack Army convoy in Lanao

By Inquirer Mindanao and Muslim Paper in Manila

MARAWI CITY—AMID A RAGING CONTROVERSY over a proposed peace deal seeking to end a separatist war in Mindanao, Moro rebels yesterday ambushed an Army convoy in Lanao del Sur, killing seven people and wounding 12 in what the military denounced as a "treacherous attack."

The Army team, composed of soldiers and paramilitary forces, were carrying arms and ammunition intended for distribution to civilians when about 180 rebels of the Moro Islamic Liberation Front (MILF) attacked them with 60-cal. machine guns, rocket-propelled grenades and other high-powered guns, officials said.

More news carried on the ambush in Marawi town and a controversy over a proposed agreement between the government and the MILF ending the establishment of a Bangsamoro homeland with wide political and economic powers in Mindanao. The deal is under scrutiny by the Supreme Court.

The guerrilla attack also came four days after the government announced a massive three-day assault that culminated about 900

RP has moved backward, says Noynoy

By Eduardo C. Tanalon Jr.

THIRTY-FIVE YEARS AFTER HIS FATHER, Sen. Benigno "Ninoy" Aquino Jr., was assassinated, Sen. Benigno "Noynoy" Aquino III yesterday lamented that working much had happened in the country.

"I am saddened that instead of moving forward after 25 years, it seems that the country has moved backward," Noynoy Aquino said during a Mass to commemorate his father's death anniversary and to pray for the full recovery of his mother, former President Corason "Cory" Aquino.

The senator said that unlike the example of his father, many "are offering themselves to the rule of money and power" instead of serving the people.

After 25 years, he said he "had hoped that the difficult fight over the convention would be over, about inclusive, or even amorphous. However, it seldom has

Bro. Mike tells GMA: Abandon Cha-cha

By Gilda L. Alon

RE UNIONING LEADER MARIANO "MIKE" Miranda yesterday said he had suggested to President Maunagaling that the administration should plan to amend the Constitution before his term ends in 2012, warning that to do so now would be divisive.

"My position is clearer in favor of a constitutional convention in 2012 so that the issue can be objectively discussed," Miranda said in an interview with the Inquirer.

His advice was to politicians Cha-cha (Change) (change) — it's very divisive — said in his own words (constitution) as a convention by electing delegates during the elections. Can it go until 2012, he added.

In spite of repeated attacks and heavy odds, last month, Maunagaling joined 23,000 Bishops faithful at the Quince-Centennial Anniversary night during the 20th anniversary of the religious movement and Maunagaling's birth.

Maunagaling had dinner and heard a 10-page sermon with Miranda and his family according to Bishops' members, the report was about the issue. The sermon noted that it was the President's biggest duty to the people — to the people who attended the event.

"Miranda, spiritual advice to the President was to be discussed with his team to change the 1987 Constitution and propose a new administrative system in the House of Representatives," he noted in his sermon, which ended in 2012.

creation of a separate state.

"I will depend on exactly what the Supreme Court will say. Maybe it will tell us the process that has to be followed. Maybe the MILF will be recognized," Gonsales said in a phone interview.

In Cotabato, Philippine Rep. Marwan Mir said he would like Sen. Aquilino Pimentel II to join the negotiating panel.

Mirra, whose province wants to lose two more seats under Pimentel's proposed districting, said Pimentel's involvement in the negotiation would make the new agreement "unacceptably incomplete and possibly illegitimate."

"The complex job of negotiating a ceasefire with deep historical roots requires the services of a specialist," he said.

Yao Ming leads after China's victory over Germany in the Olympics.

Yao powers China past Germany, into q'finals

By Rexnol Trinidad

BEIJING—PUSHING BOTH ARMS UP hard, a handsome Yao Ming stalked back to center court with his team on Sunday, passed, and declared he would never forget the moment.

The 7-foot-6 Chinese basketball player, who reached, sprinted and finally released it up with the China national team after a last game, 99-95, to move into the eighth men's Olympic basketball quarterfinals.

The final round games in the finals by the Asian team in the Olympics show the 48th place finish by the Philippines in the inaugural basketball tournament during the 2008 Olympics in Beijing.

The first Asian team after that was the seventh place by another 48th team in the 2008 Olympics in Melbourne.

Trinidad is a 20-year-old student in the last year of his senior year at the University of the Philippines who is currently a student at the University of the Philippines.

In China's debut against Spain last Tuesday. On Saturday, China took the lead early on. Yao Ming, who is a tall player, was a key player in the game. He scored 22 points and had 11 rebounds. China won the game 99-95.

A thundering drive in the basket by Yao Ming led China's lead to only one point, 99-95, with 1:00 left in the game.

After the game, Yao Ming was interviewed. He said that he was happy to be part of the team and that he would continue to work hard to improve his skills.

Lightning-fast Bolt rips mark

BEIJING—JAMAR ROBERT GAY CARRIED ON cheering fans to stadium with an Olympic title flourish and, without even really trying, set a world record in the 100 meters.

Bolt, world champion Tyson Gay cut in the semifinal. On 21-year-old Jamaican seemingly only had 100 yards left to go, but when he looked around and realized he was still clear with 30 meters to go, he reacted and still set a new 10-second world record.

Well behind, Richard Thompson of Trinidad and Tobago took the silver medal in 9.95, and Michael Gray of the United States finished in 9.91.

Finally, again, crowd: under the pressure of a big competitor and the United States.

"I was so spectacular," Bolt said. "I was definitely comfortable."

If athletes were looking for a thrilling moment to get the spot back on track after years of doping scandals, this was it. And the million-dollar prize, $1,000,000, was the Bolt's first in a huge chest, real thing to hold something historic on the Olympic Games.

With a final of the race to go, Bolt had the luxury to look right, realize he was in a class all his own, stomach his nerves, and pound his chest as he crossed the line, riding 100 off the record for another this season.

Why didn't he try to do better? "I didn't come here to run the world record, because I was the world record holder," Bolt said.

He did it with one of his teammates. When Bolt crossed the finish line, pounding his chest with one arm and waving for the camera, his left hand was flying.

Afterward, he became the happiest of champions with the biggest of grins, his sunny yellow shirt disappearing in a sea of flashes while he gave his thumbs up.

The pre-competition anxiety: "I think up to 51. Had some breath, some oxygen," he shrugged. "I think some more 100. Not in my room, sleep for three hours. When back, get some more oxygen, then come to the track."

What was supposed to be a stress-free battle for medals turned into a one-man show by his race in two days, not just did he push himself to the limit, yet pushed the most amazing action of races.

40 for a gap who was finally broken outside his Caribbean nation at the start of the season. And to think his race shocked what he was to be his own 100.

200 double after a few weeks ago.

Instead, Bolt produced one of the most epic runs in track history. Few others even came close to competing.

Perhaps Michael Johnson, winning the world record of 19.32 at the Atlanta Games, a dominating performance in winning it was tough to get after medalist. Frankie Fredericks on the same platform: the finish.

Surely that record will now come under threat when Bolt runs up to his 100 meters race week.

And Bolt can make it even better. He is the world's fastest man in the 100, and with Powell as a teammate. It is now a battle to have the Americans at their game—the 4x100 relay—next weekend.

USAIN Bolt celebrating at the finish line.

Tomescu, 38, is Olympic marathon's oldest champ

BEIJING—MARATHON RUNNER LIU XIAO, 38, was strong, usually impressive with age and Romania's new Olympic champion. Romanian Tomescu proved the point on Sunday.

The 38-year-old became the oldest Olympic women's marathon winner by eight years and is better last year worked in her advantage.

"The experience of age helped me," she said. "I have seen a lot before. I know a lot about this."

But age may also have also helped the field in thinking she was not a natural competitor and the park in the Colorado-based runner go when she jumped ahead midway through the race and held a decisive 99-second lead.

"I said (to myself), 'I have happened, why let this go coming?' Tomescu said, "Maybe they thought I wouldn't finish in the top three."

Romania's 38-year-old Catherine Moberg and China's bronze medalist Chenyue Zhou never showed a chance of catching her and could only look for the minor places.

"I kept looking back today because I didn't want to lose a medal but I couldn't believe (what I was)," she said.

China's Liu starts painful title defense

BEIJING—CHINESE WRESTLER LIU XIAO is suffering pain from an injured hamstring as he prepares to defend his Olympic title, according to a report posted on his official website Sunday.

Liu, 25, has been training in isolation for weeks and questions as to whether he'll be fit for the 120-kilogram freestyle final, one of the Games' most highly anticipated events.

Liu has competed rarely this year and in June saw his world record fall to Gabele Danyalov. Reports of Liu's sore hamstring have reportedly deterred many Chinese media and sports officials, who are counting on the wrestler to bring home China's gold medal.

Liu's longtime coach Sun Haiyang says he's not worried about Liu performing in Monday's bout, but admits he is "a little bit" by Thursday's final showdown against Robert and winning gold of Americans. AP

Liu Xiaoping showed media interviews while he prepares for his Games.

Financial assistance needed to ensure enough rice supply

By Michelle K. Reyes

THE GOVERNMENT HAS AGREED TO INCREASE TO P32 BILLION the amount of tax subsidy for the National Food Authority this year, making sure the state-owned firm will have enough financial muscle to import rice and meet demand until December.

Under the original tax subsidy program for this year, the government was only supposed to give P7.5 billion without including in the NFA, like the surge in the price of rice in the world market and increased local demand.

Based on the risk involved the allocation, Every year, the national government allocates a budget for the tax expenditure fund (TEF), from which tax incentives are released.

Slow trading seen

THE STOCK MARKET MAY slow down this week as investors take profits due to a dearth of positive news.

Most had half-savings reports by companies last week, and a rise in oil prices in the second half of the year. All Capital Securities said in a weekly note.

"While some of the issues may only be going to be temporary, the problems experienced in the first half are expected to carry on to the third and fourth quarters. Inflation, although it has been down to 3.1% last month, still presents problems as it is expected to rise in the double-digit levels until the end of this year," it said.

All Capital said the week's drop should have been a warning.

The stock market index is highly volatile.

All That's Brewing

Coffee shops put PLDT myDSL Biz into the mix

The coffee shop has really been the darling of recent years. It's the place where the revolution is brewing.

Mastering the customer's desires, aspirations and a lot of business in the result of dark roasted coffee, the coffee pleasure of real leather chairs, the dark, warm tones on the walls, and a poignant nostalgic soundtrack makes profits and market share.

The second dramatic change came in the form of technological, that is, the growing power and power of business people working out of the office and in "third places" which are, inevitably, coffee shops. A recent global study of more than a thousand professionals in 71 countries pointed out that 70% of them use technology in either equal or more more productive than conventional employees.

conformable atmosphere. Ranging from students using the comfortable chairs to write in to a long study session to businessmen holding meetings right there in the middle of the cafe, the coffee-shop has become an ideal place for all sorts of productivity. The combination of comfortable seating, early available refreshments and the quiet atmosphere of most coffee shops would have made this a popular trend in any case.

But it is the transformation of coffee shops into Wi-Fi hotspots that makes the combination into a killer app.

Two examples of coffee-shops that have already embraced this new technology include the local phenomenon Bu's Coffee and Figure. This has arranged to partner with PLDT and their myDSL Biz, their customers now enjoy the fashionable mix of coffee and Internet-on-the-go. They can have all the functionality of a virtual office with all the comforts of the coffee shop.

Simply put, Wi-Fi enabled cafes are better still. This is because most people subscribe to an office for any number of reasons. Wi-Fi, combined with the handy laptop, transforms the coffee shop into the ultimate virtual office. All the technology necessary to enjoy your coffee shop into a favorite connected "third place" is achieved with a simple hook-up to PLDT myDSL Biz.

Coffee shops, restaurants, hotels and events can become hotspots in their own right. PLDT myDSL Biz packages start from SmallBiz, at CTR of 128 kbps and burst of up to 3.5 Mbps. One of the main reasons for the success of Wi-Fi for these customers is reducing a new revenue stream by changing their fit design. And it doesn't take much — no long, difficult hours of setting up network architecture, no huge expenditures of capital — in order to make it possible. Place, list a complete Wi-Fi hotspots service can go for as low as 1500 pesos a month. So whether you're the client, PLDT is offering up to five free PC's in every new subscription. Further delaying the difficulty of setting up a Wi-Fi hotspot.

There have been a more tangible product differentiators for coffee shops and the hospitality industry than PLDT myDSL Biz is. In some instances, they're making more customers stay through, even if it's not their main reason. It's absolutely essential to keep them coming back.

Coffee, Tea, and Wi-Fi

And so, this couldn't be a better time for coffee shop owners to catch up on the technology. There are dozens of coffee shops nationwide that offer Wi-Fi connections. However, more and more customers are looking at Wi-Fi as a product differentiator, another integral part of the experiential mix — one that is growing in importance every day.

One may walk into any random coffee shop and not a wide array of people taking advantage of the

When cash is no longer king

Thanks to information technology, the world has become a much smaller global community. People and communities are connected in ways that give rise to new trends, market changes, and new consumer demands. Thus, the challenge for many marketers today is coming up with innovative ways to better connect clients using the digital platform. One for example, the travel industry is building out its own platform or mobile apps that will deliver delivery services that cater to

With new technologies, consumers also expect more than virtual immediacy and are looking for more value in the experience without the need for cash outlay. Electronic cash has originated through credit cards or price discounts, but this can evolve to gain through a variety of other marketing tools. Thus, in the virtual world, cash is not necessarily a coin.

To the advantage of today's consumers, more options of information are being developed to enable consumers of services without the aid and expense of cash handling. For example, consumers can use the MasterCard, the electronic development of plastic cash handling, to make purchases at a business both national and international. Others who want further, faster, and more convenient services

"Today's consumers are more discerning than the ones of several years ago," says the company. While speed and accuracy are important, brands are also fighting to create more personal service. "Giving our clients a lot of options where they want and how they want to see goods on the stage is being the preferred way of our clients," says Hennessey associate

Over the years, the book has continued to expand and improve its library services chapters, as well as its learning chapters. For many, however, the learning means direct access to content through an automated teller machine (ATM). However, nowadays a learning has continued to take different types of materials.

Can this use of the Internet be extended to other financial services? In the banking industry, the Internet is making financial professionals, customers and products more accessible. The Internet is also a promising marketing tool for financial services. Some financial agents are using the Internet to promote their services. Others are using the Internet to provide information and conduct research. Some are using the Internet to provide financial planning and investment advice. ## Mutual funds for P1,000 a month

By Denis C. Duran

INVESTING IS ALSO GETTING BIGGER, the earlier in life you start doing it, the better your chances of winning the gold. And it, too, requires a lot of discipline and patience.

That a typical salaried employee—ones who welcome a knock for conservatism as they saddle up for the stock, bond or money market—can now become an investor is much easier than for one ever to be an athlete. After all, there are no daily time-out options these days aside from putting up with one's business or buying physical assets such as real estate or livestock.

Philam Asset Management Inc. (PAMI), the local mutual fund unit of global financial conglomerate M&I, recently launched a general investment program (PIP) that allows retail investors to participate in its mutual funds for as low as P1,000 a month.

It is intended primarily for companies with employees who may want to set aside funds for their future or begin an affordable savings scheme.

"We established PIP because we want more people to avail of the benefits of mutual funds. We're primarily targeting employees. PAMI is going through the necessary for picking this to company executives, for them to institutionalize the PIP within their organizations," PAMI executive vice president Gina Goco-Monday says.

A mutual fund, known by financial advisors for people who have neither the time nor expertise to manage their own funds, pools money and allows the investors to benefit from professional fund management and portfolio diversification.

An investor with a small contribution in the fund gets the same rate of return as the investor with large equity. Thus, even a call center agent looks out of college can start building up wealth by saving aside a portion of monthly earnings—simply by skipping some gourmet coffee or a night of club-bopping with friends.

Less intimidating

The PIP intends to make investing less intimidating, thereby encouraging people to start investing in mutual funds much earlier.

Small investors can take advantage of the scheme where they can make monthly investments according to their budgets. It also helps to diversify mutual funds by participating with the broader resources (F&I) of several mutual companies.

For employees of company-endorsed PIPs, the minimum initial investment is P1,000, and the required minimum participation in a company is 10 employees. For other individuals, minimum initial investment is P20,000. For both investor types, minimum amount the recurring investments is only 1,000 monthly over a specified term, whether 12, 18, 24 months or more.

"The objective is to make companies realize that they can offer PIP as an optional savings scheme through salary deductions. It's additional work for the human resources and payroll departments, but it will be worth it. Employees will see the investment of PIP by their companies as one of their non-cash benefits...their company's way of showing it cares by enabling them to prepare for their future," Monday says.

Monday stresses that aim of benefits offered by companies to employees, such as salary loans, usually encourage spending instead of saving.

"What we're saying is there could actually go hand in hand. When you encourage spending, you should also offer benefits that encourage savings in having an investment," she says. "We prefer an endorsement from the P&I but if it's not an endorsement, investors can also do it on their own."

Investing made easy

Investing is made easy in this by doing via salary deduction or issuance of post-dated checks.

"Initially, there's a PIP program because an order for companies to provide a pension or retirement fund for the staff. Employees' benefits is consequently improved and that can make the company more attractive to top talents looking for stable jobs," adds chief senior APT-Village Inc.

PAMI is one of the first asset management companies in the country to manage a family of funds and is a major cost driver in the development of the Philippines mutual fund industry. It has the biggest market share in the industry in terms of shareholder accounts, fund individual and institutional.

"P&I are not fundraising and customer base—providing these other solutions investors can more easily build their future wealth. We are, in fact, extending to small investors the advantages of diversification, liquidity and lower cost options. But only organizations with extensive financial muscle like PAMI can provide," Monday says.

The program actually evolved from an internal investment scheme offered by the firm to its own employees' past year.

PhilamLife president Juan Camia Jr. himself was among the pioneering investors, contributing P1,000 out of his monthly salary to support the program. During client calls, Camia often found out there's demand for such a small investment program, inspiring the rollout of the PIP to the public.

PIP is also in negotiating deals in a number of fund on an investment basis like selling housing or purchase a car or a household appliances.

The investor has an array of mutual funds managed by PAMI to choose from, depending on individual risk appetite. The company currently administers, distributes and provides investment advisory to seven mutual funds: the Philam Bond Fund, Philam

BUT HE TELLED PAIR PERFORMERS that the "fucking male" had to be "a handsome young man, a little bit of a thing in Atlanta had seen him again or he had seen him in the '80s."

Watching Roberto Kelly, previous drummer of It's a Sin in Willow, perform on film, I somewhat get why he, like me, had passionately pursued a director's crack for all his life. He might have reached Kelly's status. He could also have reversed so-called fate, the more elegant Italian Teluke instead of the playful "Boyle," and he would be made quite a package. By now, after not just Just Married with Keanu and Halle, but also with an Indiana boy for Indiana Jones and a Star Trek guy for Star Trek sequels, if you may, then it is, indeed, just something difficult with age.

His proportions were ideal Vitruvian material, with a good chest, a perfect V-shaped torso, well-toned like any pack athlete, long muscular legs, and some of all (the one, at least) a well-shaped posterior, thus being behind him at the ballroom could prove a little distracting especially when doing a full pose or one involving forward from the waist, arms in 120°, chest reaching up, pointing his perfectly shaped butted posterior to the floor of the ballroom and into a chair.

I always found his first a little scary, the initials, but they were there a chance in a class, hearing a note again he raised the floor and a good arch. In it, then, he was graceful, perhaps because he was musical, and for a note dance his hands were like a smaller music.

Despite his grace, Beetle was a full-headed male, many times surrounded by women, some becoming his romantic interest, many his good friends for life. And while he later ventured successfully into modeling, his appearances on the camp, at his dancing outings, awarded him a more active role.

In the early '80s, when 30-year-old Rebecca Rodriguez, danced her first pas de deux, "Pas de deux for a Sucker" by the Manila Metropolitan Ballet, it was Ben, in whom Roy Ricks chose to partner her. Rebecca, who also has been long gone from Manila, is now a political activist in Los Angeles, Calif.

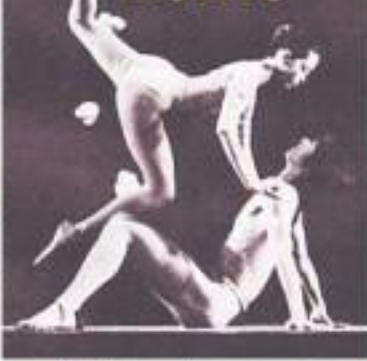

Among his other partners were Lyl Lyl Coston, Gina Martino and Maribel Flores, now known as Elizabeth Sims, dancing for the Alvin Ailey African Dance Company.

Siningapor, Pinoy art group, to bold show in S'pore

Exhibit marks 40 years of diplomatic relations between Manila and the Lion City

ON THE OCCASION OF THE 40th anniversary of Philippine-Singapore diplomatic relations in 2008, the Philippine Embassy in Singapore and an artist group have teamed up to launch an art group exhibition inspired by the Filipino diaspora.

What is life like as an overseas professional worker? And what is it like to live in Singapore—what are the things that you choose to see as a tourist, and those that you are forced

Global Pinoy editor as occasional art curator

By James P. Ong
Contributor

JUST RECENTLY, SOMEONE asked me if I ever think of going back to Manila or if I consider Singapore my home. I thought the question was painful.

Pinoy, more than anyone, have become global citizens in this day and age—especially for Filipinos who work overseas—don't see just one home. We work abroad, we sometimes miss the culture of our home country, but we maintain Filipino identity.

That Filipino diaspora and sense of self identity is what we are tackling in an art

QC fest draws new directors

By Bayani San Diego Jr.

THE QUESTION CITY FILM Festival has attracted outstanding directors from universities and colleges in the area.

Here, however, executive director of the QC Film Development Commission, gave because Entertainment a list of the early winners, which include short filmmakers from UP Diliman, St. Paul University, Ateneo College and Marikina College.

"They're very creative," Antonio said of the entries. "The films come in various forms and genres and tackle varied issues."

Amongst, "Mud L, ex-hortoria," by Vincent Rios of St. Paul, captures the essence of Filipino professionals in the US.

A drama, "One Hundred Pasa 88," by Liza Ann Tanyag of Angelina, chronicles the struggles of a girl who is raped by her father and becomes obsessed with P900.

Movie, theater and TV series fans welcome and John Arilla star in "Pang Bini," made by UP student Anna Prudente.

Other entries are "Olga" by Liza Prudente, "Meronang" by Liza Prudente, "The

What I've learned Get to the playground early

I AM A SLOW LEARNER. IT took me six years to learn how to access the shortest route to address on any mobile phone. By the time I learned it, I couldn't even trade the phone in for a knock-out punch.

I'm not proud. I am still amazed by how I took an extra year to learn that other route around mountains and rivers than the path I took that got me to the point that my husband doesn't like me.

For topping this year's National Achievement Test for sixth graders, Marasbaras Elementary will get a visit from the education secretary

By Joy A. Gahim
Reporter/Editor

CHILDREN CITY—A PUBLIC ELEMENTARY SCHOOL is a small community in this city has topped the recently held National Achievement Test (NAT), a test that will send a visit from the education secretary, later this month.

The Marasbaras Community Elementary School topped the 2008 NAT to finish a school with 15-19 students with a Mean Performance Score (MPS) rating of 90.27 percent, an achievement attributed to school principal Antonio Gahim. Gahim is the "father" of the school and its students.

Education Secretary Ardu Lapas is reportedly coming for a visit on Aug. 20 to personally congratulate the school. Lapas will be the first education secretary to visit the school, said Gahim.

When NAT was first held in 2003, the school, which has a reputation of popularity in the area, posted a rating of 88.73 percent. In 2006, it had a rating of 87.23 percent and in 2007, it's rating improved

By 86 percent.

In this year, the school card reads as follows: Mathematics, 90.3 percent; Filipino, 87.00 percent; English, 90 percent and Science, 87 percent.

One of its students, Ardu Lapas, is a student of the school. He is now studying in a public high school in Marasbaras, the principal said.

Gahim said they were hoping that their rating in this year's NAT would be higher than what they had achieved in the past three years but they did not expect to lead on top of all the elementary schools in the area.
